

ABSTRACT

A pyrotechnic device such as an electronic detonator having an electrical connection provided between a conductive (e.g., metal) shell or external ground and an ESD-protective structure within the circuitry, for example in an integrated circuit chip. The ESD-protective structure may include any suitable means such as an integrated silicon controlled resistor or a diode.